

Local and Personal Mention.

The Trinity Episcopal parsonage on Fourth street, New Haven was the scene of a large and enjoyable social gathering held last evening in honor of the pastor Rev. Thomas Lloyd and wife. The affair was a complete and enjoyable surprise to Rev. Lloyd and was arranged by the members of the congregation. It was in the form of a grand party and Rev. Lloyd and wife were the recipients of quite a large donation. The evening was spent in a most delightful social manner and a large number of guests were present. The guests included the members of the congregation and a number of their friends.

NEWS OF SCOTSDALE.

The Y. M. C. A. Takes Up
Athletic Out at Louck's Park.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES NAMED

By President Byrne for the Ensuing Year—Local Option Club Plans Big
Meeting in the Steel Town on March 24.

SCOTSDALE, March 18.—A proposition is now before the management of the local Y. M. C. A. to put a race track in Louck's Park for athletics during the summer months. A 100-yard dash is planned with high and broad jumping and pole vaulting facilities. The matter was recommended by the Athletic Committee and has been taken up by the Board. No definite action has been taken, but the Board seems favorable to the proposition. Should this be done it will give the young men of town a chance to indulge in athletics and hold meets could be arranged. The young men of the Association are very much in favor of the movement.

Sets now on sale for Harry Kelly in "His Honor the Mayor," at the Soloson theatre, Friday, March 20. Big beauty, chorus of fifty.

President A. P. Byrne of Council has announced the following committees for the present year: Finance, O. S. Weaver, T. W. Porter, A. P. Byrne; Street, T. W. Porter, E. J. O'Connor, O. S. Weaver; Sewer, L. R. Elcher, F. J. O'Connor, A. E. Collins; Light, A. E. Collins, W. H. Brown, J. F. Berry; Fire and Water, J. C. Horne, W. H. Sleight, W. H. Brown; Police, H. C. Martz, J. F. Berry, J. W. Fitzsimmons; Public Buildings, J. C. Horne, J. W. Fitzsimmons, A. P. Byrne; Ordinance, W. H. Sleight, H. C. Martz, W. H. Brown; Sanitation and Garbage, P. J. O'Connor, L. R. Elcher, J. F. Berry.

At the regular meeting of the Local Option Club on Tuesday, March 24, there will be an address by Rev. W. C. Crowell of Pittsburgh on "What Local Option is and What It Has Done." Rev. Crowell has had considerable experience with the subject in Ohio and is familiar with its workings. All are invited to attend.

About 20 of the comrades of A. B. Findley with their wives gave him a pleasant surprise last night in honor of his 50th birthday. Music by the Luker orchestra, of town and an address by Miss Delphine Swenette of Carlisle, Pa., were the features of the evening. A nice lunch was served. Mr. Findley is one of the early residents of town and is quite well known. He is a leading member of Col. Ellsworth Post, G. A. R.

Rev. S. S. Hough, D. D., of Dayton, O., was here yesterday a few hours visiting Rev. W. W. Williamson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schiller were Pittsburgh visitors yesterday.

Mrs. J. M. Stauffer spent yesterday in Pittsburgh.

Soloson Theatre Friday, March 20.

WHEN SPRING ARRIVES
the wise people take measures to cleanse the body of winter's acculated impurities. Medicines that place the blood in a clean, healthy state are what is needed; but they must be reliable, pure and such as will not disorder the stomach. Keep on the safe side and order your remedies from Barkley's Pharmacy.
There you will get what will do you good.

THE Princess Virginia

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON,
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor," "The Many Schemes of a Father," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"If she tests those powers in our presence, we can be audience and admire her histrionic talents," said the prince pleasantly, though with some faint, growing sign of constraint or perhaps impatience. "There's no doubt in my mind whatever may be the lady's conception of her part, about the final tableau. And after all, it's with that alone you concern yourself, eh, chancellor?"

"It's that alone," echoed the old man. "Then you would like to go and await the message. There's nothing more for us to arrange. An revoir, chancellor, till then."

"When the curtain for the last act will ring up."

The prince held out his hand. Count von Breitenstein grasped it and then hurried to his electric carriage, which had been waiting outside the hotel. A few minutes later he was talking over the wire to the emperor in the railway station at Felgerde.

"The prince held out his hand. Count von Breitenstein grasped it and then hurried to his electric carriage, which had been waiting outside the hotel. A few minutes later he was talking over the wire to the emperor in the railway station at Felgerde."

something within him would at last have staged the flying moments had that been possible. He hurried to ask questions of Von Breitenstein, yet would have died rather than utter them.

"It was a relief to the emperor when, after a long silence his companion spoke, though a relief which carried with it a prick of resentment. Even the chancellor had no right to speak first without permission from his sovereign."

"Forgive me, your majesty," the old man said. "Your anger is hard to bear, yet I bear it uncomplainingly, for it is my confidence that the toward's not far off. I look for it no further in the future than tonight."

"I, too, believe that you won't miss your reward," returned the emperor sharply.

"I shall have it, I am sure, not only in your majesty's forgiveness, but in your thanks."

"I'll forgive you when you've asked my pardon for your suspicious and when you've found Miss Mowbray for me."

"I have already found her and am taking you to her now."

"Then you actually believe in your own story? You believe that this sweet and beautiful young girl is a fast mistress, a schemer, a friend of your notoriously brilliant friend and willing to risk her reputation by paying a visit to an imprisoned man at his hunting lodge in the woods? You are, after all, a very poor judge of character if you dream that we shall see her there."

"I shall see her, your majesty, and you will see her unless the madness you call love has blinded the eyes of your body as well as the eyes of your mind. That she is now at the lodge I know, for the prince assured me with his own lips that she had promised to motor out alone with him and him."

"You mean he told you that his friend the actress had promised. I'll stake my life even he didn't dare to say Miss Mowbray."

"He said Miss Brett, the actress, it's true, but when he called upon her at her hotel, where he and I met to discuss a matter which is no secret to your majesty, he asked for Miss Mowbray. And the message that came down I heard. It was that Miss Mowbray would be delighted to see his royal highness. This left no doubt in my mind that after giving out that she would leave today the lady had remained in Kronburg for the express purpose of meeting her dear friend the prince, the huntmaster and his dressed young man in Europe—after your majesty, of course. And it was quite natural for her to hope that, as she was supposed to be gone and you were following her, this evening's escapade would never be discovered."

"Then, appears your destination, chancellor," said the emperor curtly, "and pray understand now, if you have not understood before, that I am with you in this expedition not to prove you right, but wrong, and nothing you can say will convince me that the prince's actress, and Miss Mowbray are one. If we find a woman at the hunting lodge it will not be the lady we seek unless she has been kidnapped and as you will presently be obliged to eat every word you've spoken the fewer such bitter pills you provide for yourself to swallow the better."

"I have understood by the young man whom he had held in his arms, an imperious as well as an imperial infant, the old statesman sought sanctuary in silence. But he had said that which had been in his mind to say, and he was satisfied. Meekness was not his nature, but he could play the part of the faithful servant, humbly loyal through injustice and misunderstanding, and he played it now, because he knew it to be the one effective role. He sat beside the emperor with bowed head and stooping shoulders, which suggested the weakness of old age, his hands clasped before him, and from time to time he sighed patiently.

"As they glided under the dark arch of the Buchenwald Leopold spoke again.

"You have led me to suppose that our call at the hunting lodge will be a surprise visit to the prince. That is the case, isn't it?"

Count von Breitenstein would have preferred that the question had not been asked. He had intended to convey the impression which the emperor had received, but he had not clothed it in actual statement. Luckily the prince was as clever as he was good looking, and he could be trusted as an actor; otherwise the old man would have been still more reluctant to commit himself.

"Was our visit expected we should not be likely to find the lady," said he. "The prince and I are on such friendly terms, your majesty, that he didn't mind confiding he was to have a pretty actress as his guest. He also answered a few questions I asked concerning her freely and frankly, for to do so he had to tell me only what the world knows. How could he dream that the flirtations or the visits of a Miss Jenny Brett could be of the slightest importance to the emperor or Rhodora? And he guessed, however, that the entertainment he meant to offer her might be interrupted naturally, he would have taken some means to protect her from annoyance."

"This night's work will give him cause to pick a private quarrel with me if he likes," said the emperor, convinced of the chancellor's good faith.

"I don't think he will choose, your majesty. You are in a mood to be glad if he did. I fear, but no, I need not fear. You will always remember Rhodora and put her interests before your own wishes."

"You weren't as confident of that a few hours ago."

"Then then I knew that when the real test should be applied your majesty's cool head would triumph over the hot impulse of youth. But now we're passing through the village of Isseledon, fast asleep already, every window dark. In six or seven minutes at this speed we shall be at the lodge."

The emperor laughed shortly. "Add another seven minutes to your first seven and we shall be out of the lodge again, with Chancellor von Breitenstein a snorer and a whistler more than he went in."

Meekness was once more the part for the old man to play, and, raising his hands, palm upward, in a gesture of generous indignation for his young sovereign, he denuded himself the plagues of report.

HIBERNIANS BANQUET

Over 100 Members of Order
Gathered About Festal
Board

AT YOUGH HOUSE LAST EVENING

Father John T. Burns Was the Only
Speaker of the Evening—Loyalty to Ireland Expressed in Eloquent
Terms—Out of Town Guests Present.

Home-like in its arrangements, yet elaborate and enjoyable, the first annual banquet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at the Yough House last night was the occasion of the gathering of more than 100 Irishmen and Irish-Americans, who with every mouthful of food partaken of extolled the greatness, the goodness and their love of Ireland. Everyone present had the genuine Irish blood of their forefathers coursing through their veins, and every one was proud and glad of it, even though Ireland oppressed was a sad sorrow, and a million strain running through the thoughts of the gathering.

The tables were conveniently arranged in the large dining room of the hotel and were prettily decorated with ferns and flowers. No attempt at a lavish decoration was made, just a simplicity of green, and in some places the fair green of the shamrock could be detected over the gathering and hidden away in the little niches of the decorations. Proprietor James McGloin, who is an Irishman every inch, was there and saw that everything was all right. Mrs. McGloin was also there and looking after every detail. She attended to everything with painstaking care and made the banquet served a most delightful and enjoyable one.

The menu served required upwards of two hours, was delicious and was partaken of with great delight, and there were many witty quips, as only the Irishmen can envision a feast. It was not all eating to satisfy the inner men, but there was a great deal of well intermixed, which was intellectual food and repose, that made the special merit of the evening. The dinner served among good friends and close relations. Still formality was forgotten in good fellowship.

After all had eaten their fill, and when every one was looking to having a few minutes of jollity, Michael Mullin and James McGuire of Mt. Pleasant, assisted by Miss Katie Knapp at the piano, sang some cutting Irish songs, which were lustily applauded.

Rev. John T. Burns, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, was the only speaker of the evening. He stated that as a part of the local press was represented he was afraid to deliver the address he had written and memorized for fear that he would be misquoted. He therefore asked permission to file it for delivery and elaboration at some future time. However, he made a very enthusiastic and eloquent address, stating that he did not expect that he would be called upon to address such a distinguished gathering, but as he belonged to the human race, and as some things were called human agents, he had endeavored to do something and had written out a paper. He wasn't well pleased with it, however, and felt that at this time he could not read it, but would file it. He then made a few Irish sallies, touching eloquently upon matters pertaining to Irishmen and Ireland. He mentioned the beautiful songs and the folklore of Ireland, and, though America had beautiful music, beautiful scenes and many beautiful things, it did not have the rhyme of those beautiful songs or the tune of the melody. In an eloquent, beautiful and pathetic manner he professed his frailty and his love of the Emerald Isle, and every Irishman present felt like bowing his head in acknowledgement as he spoke of the great and oppressed spot that England lays such a heavy heel upon. Then he drifted to the Brexide tales and never were they more realistically told and entwined with such graphic memories, beautiful flowers and garlands of the true Irishman's thoughts. He embodied every pretty scene with delicate language and told of the beautiful love of the Irish and the home ties of the great and lowly. It took but a few moments to carry all back to Erin.

Then coming back, he said that he intended to talk upon the "Faith of Ireland," but that he felt that such a paper that he had intended to read would be misquoted by some of the press, and that he would therefore file it, and at some future time it might be read.

Following this he delivered an excellent oration, picturing faith and the holy religion that the Irishman stood for, fought for and which had stood the persecution of long time. In a ringing, clear and sincere voice he proclaimed his allegiance to "Ireland forever."

The address was followed by songs by Robert Mahon of Conneltsville and John Mahon of Leisening No. 1. They were true Irish in spirit and were sung very entertainingly.

Those attending the banquet from out of town were: George Bamberg, John Gaffney, James Keegan, C. E. O'Neill and C. W. O'Brien, Evanson; James C. Horne, J. C. Boylan, John Gilmore, Dennis Call, Hugh Boylan, James Hurley, Thomas Haley, Dennis Cunningham, M. Foley, Adelaide; Rev. Philip Brady, Dawson; P. Fagan,

COSTS NOTHING.

An Absolutely Safe Convenience Without Charge.

When you think of the cost of equipping and conducting a good business it seems almost incredible that you can leave your money with it and check it out at will without paying one cent for the privilege. In England banks charge for this service, but in this country the safety and convenience afforded by a checking account costs nothing; even the bank checks are free. A checking account not only affords the safest and simplest manner of paying bills, but it prevents the loss of money by theft, carelessness or accident. The First National Bank, the oldest and strongest National Bank in Conneltsville, cordially invites your checking account, whether large or small.

WILL TAKE ABOUT FIVE MINUTES TO RELIEVE YOU OF INDIGESTION.

Read Why Nothing Will Upset Your Stomach or Remain Undigested If You Eat Diapiesin

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take one 22-grain Triangles of Diapiesin after eating. Your meals will taste good and any thing you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea, indigestion (like a lump of lead in the stomach), biliousness, heartburn, waterbrash, pain in the stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective Diapiesin is used. No matter what you think your trouble—call it by any name you choose—it is certain that the real cause is fermentation of the food you eat. All else are merely symptoms or the result of this cause. For all these things you will find a sure cure in Diapiesin, and one 22-grain Triangle, taken after your next meal, will prove this. Diapiesin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each Triangle will digest 3,600 grains of food and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Any good pharmacy here can supply these 50-cent boxes of Pap's Diapiesin, which have the complete formula printed thereon to show just what you are taking, and that it is no more harmful than candy.

Start taking Diapiesin today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach. For you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.
